

FECAL INCONTINENCE CLINIC

“18 million Americans suffer from bowel incontinence” which means you are not alone.

Bowel incontinence (inability to control the bowel) is a common problem. Symptoms include unexpected leakage of stool (liquid to solid) or gas from the rectum. Social stigma and embarrassment may cause patients to delay discussing bowel control issues with their doctor, but patients are often surprised to learn their problems are caused by an underlying — and often treatable — medical condition.

The Fecal Incontinence Clinic at the Centers for Gastroenterology directed by Dr. Crystal North and Sharon Margraf, NP, are here to help alleviate the symptoms of chronic bowel incontinence in patients who have not had success with more conservative treatments — or who may not be candidates for these options.

Centers for Gastroenterology has been providing care for our Northern Colorado neighbors for more than 30 years. Our dedicated team of experts have developed a proven protocol to successfully diagnose and treat fecal incontinence.
